McElroy Translation Elected One of Texas Best in 2010

The Texas legal community and Texas Lawyer readers have spoken and voted McElroy Translation as one of the "Texas Best" for Best Translation Service Provider.

Austin, TX (24 Jan 2011)—McElroy Translation, a full-service language services provider, is honored to have received the Texas Best award for Best Translation Service Provider in 2010 from Texas Lawyer, an ALM publication. "Texas' Best Of 2010" is Texas Lawyer's business department's first annual "Best Of" poll in which Texas lawyers cast their votes for the best providers of products and services to the legal community.

"The survey was conducted in September, and was sent via e-mail to attorneys in the State of Texas. The ballot consisted of 40 categories encompassing legal support, business, and lifestyle products and services," stated Cathy Collins, publisher of Texas Lawyer. "Hundreds of attorneys took the time to participate and voted not only for the companies listed in the survey, but added a significant amount of write-ins as well."

McElroy has been a trusted strategic partner in patent translations, patent litigation matters, and global patent filing for more than 40 years. We provide project management expertise from start to finish and superior quality standards for deliverables our clients can depend on. We translate large volumes of patent and litigation documents to meet aggressive deadlines and adjust to priorities as they are affected by case developments and changes in IP law.

"For more than 40 years, patent and legal translation has been the cornerstone of McElroy Translation's business," says Olga Pechenko-Kopp, CEO. "We are privileged to work with many of the top firms and corporate legal departments in Texas and are deeply honored to have been voted as one of "Texas Best" by the legal community."
