

- Intellectual Property
- Contracts
- Litigation Support
- Government Regulations
- Trademark Registration
- Corporate Correspondence

Patent Translations

McElroy Translation has delivered 12 million+ words of patents each year since 1981. McElroy has 500 technical linguists with patent translation experience. Our clients include corporate legal departments, law firms, and governmental entities. McElroy customizes its workflow to best serve every client and every project, including literal translation, internal use translation, and patent text for filing—each of which requires a different approach.

Patent Litigation

McElroy has supported patent litigation cases for the last 25 years by providing deposition and trial interpreters, assisting with document screening to qualify documents for translation, translating large volumes of patent and case-related documentation to meet aggressive deadlines, providing translation project management, and adjusting priorities as they are affected by case developments.

Legal Translators

McElroy's legal translators have strong technical backgrounds and extensive experience with intellectual property documentation. McElroy selects translators based not only on their language abilities, but also their technical backgrounds. Talented translators are developed from varied sources; subject-area expertise can be obtained through formal education but nearly always needs to be supplemented by employment in the field and extensive translation experience.

"They have consistently performed at a high level of quality and go above and beyond contract requirements to provide excellent services."

—Contractor Performance Report,
UNITED STATES PATENT
AND TRADEMARK OFFICE
(a client for 25 years and counting)

